Locust Ridge Cemetery Old Sargent Burying Ground

On the 30th of July in the year 1798, Col. John Sargent died and was buried in a cemetery that had been established on the property of his neighbor Benjamin Butterfield. This cemetery came to be known as the Old Sargent Burying Ground. It is here that John, his wife, children and many of his descendants lie. John's gravestone reads:

*Sacred to the memory of Colo. John Sargeant
Who Departed this life
July the 30th 1798
in sixty sixth year of his Age
Who now lies in the same town in which he was Born, & was the first person Born in the state of Vermont.*

*Lo where the silent marble weeps
A friend & Husband sleeps
He gave them good Council
while he had his Breath
Advising them to prepair for Death.*

Colonel John Sargent was known for his valiant and well documented participation in the Revolutionary War and the fight for the independence of the State of Vermont. In 1762, John and his brother, Lieutenant Thomas Sargent, purchased a tract of four hundred and sixty-three acres in the West River District of Brattleboro, Vermont. In 1770, they purchased 440 acres in the northeast part of Brattleboro and it was here that they settled. The land spanned a large section that reached from the West River to the Connecticut River.

Colonel Sargent built his large, two-story gambrel house on the south side of the road leading to the Suspension Bridge. This is thought to be where Route 9 and Route 5 meet, probably very near the spot where the Howard Johnson Restaurant was built in more recent times. John's house became a neighborhood gathering place and was quite the entertainment spot for travelers up and down the river. It was said to be one of the first taverns in Vermont.

The first recorded burial in the Old Sargent Burial Ground appears to have been in 1776 when Susannah (Spaulding) Butterfield was interred. Other early gravesites appear for the families of Hadley, Wilder, Bemis, French, and Frost --- all early settlers in the area. On Mar 24, 1804, Benjamin Butterfield for $1 gave this burying ground to the School District No. 1 in Brattleboro and it was given in trust to Elihu Sargent. This piece of property appears to include much of what is included here as the "Old Section."

The Old Sargent Burying Ground continued to expand through the years and later became known as the Locust Ridge Cemetery. It is now operated by trustees of the Locust Ridge Cemetery Association. It is located in Brattleboro, Windham County, Vermont just off Putney Road on Black Mountain Road, and lies between Highway 5 and Interstate 91. From a small family lot, it has grown to over 1000 graves and is still in use today.

In 1929, a large monument known as the "Goodall Fountain" was moved from the corner of Putney and Black Mountain Roads to the cemetery. An article which appeared in the Vermont Phoenix in July 1929, reads as follows:

Permission has been granted by the town authorities to Mrs. Christina Goodall Lipe of New York to remove the fountain at the junction of Putney and Black Mountain Roads to Locust Ridge Cemetery. The work of removal was begun Monday. The fountain was given in memory of Mrs. Lipe's father, E. K. Goodall, who built the house on Putney road now owned by Mrs. D. S. McElhinny¹. Designed as a drinking fountain for horses, it became practically useless at its present site after the advent of automobiles. It's location in the cemetery will be appropriate, as both Mr. and Mrs. Goodall are buried there. It will also furnish the cemetery with a much needed water supply."

In 1930, a section in Locust Ridge Cemetery was given by Pearl T. Clapp, to the Brattleboro Post No. 5, American Legion. The purpose was to have a burial place for any service man in need of one. It was reported, "From this day on, no American Legion member in this locality, and having made no other provisions for burial, would have to be buried at the expense of charity." This plot was 20 feet wide by 24 feet long. The cemetery trustees assured the post, that they would have the opportunity to buy adjoining lots as needed before disposing of them to others. The dedication for this plot took place in November 1930. This section now contains the graves of 56 veterans.

It has been 222 years since the first interment and just 200 since John Sargent was buried. His gravestone still stands as a sentinel and monument to the man and his times on this narrow strip of land which sits on the rise of a hill as you journey up Black Mountain Road. Much of the landscape has changed in the area, but this small piece of land remains to remind us of those days and times and people who have created a legacy for us all.

¹The Goodall/McElhinny house has since been removed and a bowling alley, parking lot and small building are now in its place.

The publication of this cemetery listing is part of an on-going project by the compiler to record for posterity the local graveyards and their gravestones. It may be noted, that for the most part, though the stones in this cemetery are in good shape and legible, there are many that can no longer be read. Others have been broken, lost, or destroyed. Time, weather, and pollution factors are taking their toll on the old cemeteries and the gravestones are speedily deteriorating. Vandalism has also been a problem in many locations over the recent years.

The gravestones in this book have been recorded in sections. The first, the "Old Section," starts about half way back on the cemetery drive at what looks like a break or walkway between the stones and goes to the turn-around at the end of the roadway. This includes the original cemetery, although it also reflects the Bemis lot on the north end which was added in 1893. Note that the Old Section may in actuality continue for a few graves to the south. This area is broken up into 7 sections which are lettered from A to G and fall from south to north.

The second section is what we call the "New Section" and that falls to the south of the above area (with perhaps a slight overlap). It has been numbered H through J. These stones are numbered from north to south.

The last and final section is that of the American Legion lot which is found on the far south end of the cemetery. For this lot, the numbering is sequential through the present five rows, reading from north to south.

The section letter discussed above is recorded in the first place of the numbers which we have assigned to each stone. Then there is a row number assigned and these go from the west to east, as they are seen from the roadway. Sections may have from 1 to 12 rows and what is shown reflects that section. Note, some sections may have rows missing. Also shown is a letter (a, b, c) which indicates its position in the row (of that section), reading from south to north in the Old Section and north to south in the New Section. Next there may be recorded a letter N, S, E, W to indicate the "face" of the stone upon which the inscription is found. If not shown, it may be assumed that the inscription faces west. Superscripts are also used to indicate the placement of names on stones or monuments where more than one name is recorded.

With further regard to the rows. If viewing the cemetery, you will note that rows are irregular and it is often hard to tell exactly which row the graves fall in. One consideration we found is that often monuments were placed far to the rear of their corresponding graves and quite often look like they are in the next row back. Here we have recorded them as being in the row with the gravestones. We have also seen, on a map that we have since found of the "New Section," that the graves are numbered from east to west and vice versa, as they go up one row and down the next. It also seems that the size and position of the lots was sometimes changed to fit the space. It is obvious from this why such irregular patterns are seen when viewing. We feel, however, that for all practical purposes, the system herein will provide the researcher with the information he may need with regard to the information on and location of the stones.

For the most part, the stones we have recorded here have been broken up into what appears to be lots or family groupings which may not reflect actual lots purchased. There are instances where the graves cover two or more rows going west to east. In those cases, the graves are recorded together and a reference is made in the text as to which row they appear to be in.

The maiden names of spouses has been of particular interest to the compiler as well as the identification of the people in the older graves. This information has been added whenever possible and italics have been used to indicate the additional data in the possession of or seen by the compiler which has been added herein.

There is a complete alphabetical name index at the back of this book which provides a cross-reference to maiden names. There is also a list of references that have been consulted in compiling this listing.

The cemetery has a stone retaining wall built on the east and west sides of the cemetery. We have found several old and broken stones along these walls which we have recorded as we could read them. In some instances, we were able to place them where they "might" have been. It is believed that there are probably other stones in this wall or down over the bank. We have also found evidence in other locations, such as newspaper obituaries and town records, of others who were buried here but have no stone at this time. These, except for very recent burials, will be found at the end.

³There is a small footstone located on the east wall of the cemetery with the inscription of "J. S." It is located in the area of John Sargeant's stone (B-09-c) which proves nothing, but gives the suggestion that it may have been his. This, coupled with the fact that there is a similar stone with "F. S." located in the cemetery, which though misplaced, is nearby, suggests that it may have been a footstone for his wife, Fanny (see B-09-d and B-09-a).

Locust Ridge Cemetery Inscriptions

Part 2: New Section

This part of the cemetery is composed of newer stones and many of the people listed on the stones are still living. This section begins beside the south side of Section A of the old section and runs from there to the south, towards Black Mountain Road. At the southern most point of the cemetery, lies a soldiers memorial which will be included in Part 3. The numbering system is done in a similar fashion as the old section, except that the stones are read from north to south.

Miscellaneous Items on the History of the Locust Ridge Cemetery

Vermont Phoenix, June 6, 1924

Locust Ridge

At a special meeting of Locust Ridge Cemetery association of district No. 1 Saturday evening, it was voted to enlarge the cemetery by buying a strip of land that joins it south of the main road, now owned by John Cobb, D. E. McElhinny, Merton C. Robbins and Warner L. Thomas were appointed to handle the project.

Locust Ridge

Locust Ridge to be enlarged by addition of 300 lots and Grove-Schoolhouse to be Re-located.

Extensive improvements at Locust Ridge cemetery on Putney Road are planned, made possible through a gift of land by D. E. McElhinny and the contribution of funds by others to enable the purchase of additional land, which will permit enlarging the cemetery to provide about 300 more lots. George E. Thomas is president of the cemetery association and is sexton, and the committee in charge of the improvements consists of D. E. McElhinny, chairman, Merton C. Robbins and Warner L. Thomas. The committee was elected at a recent meeting of the association.

For a long time there have been no available lots in the cemetery, although there has been a large demand. As a step in meeting the need Mr. McElhinny offered to give land on the north provided the association would buy the land between the cemetery and Black Mountain Road on the south, owned by John M. Cobb, also the land between the latter property and the brook to the west which has been done.

This includes a triangular plot beside the road, to which the school house will be moved. It will give the school a better setting and provide twice as large a play yard.

A new driveway will be built a little to the west of the present driveway, affording a better grade to the cemetery. It will be built of gravel and will be 14 feet in width. It will continue through the cemetery to the land on the north given by Mr. McElhinny, where a large road circle for turning will accommodate 20 or more automobiles. The McElhinny property will be made into an attractive grove but will not be available for lots. A supply of water at the cemetery is being provided.

The funds pledged for this improvement take care of the purchase of the property only, but the association hopes that from some source it will be able to erect a handsome cemetery fence along the frontage on Black Mountain Road.

This cemetery is only two miles from Brattleboro village and is beautifully located, and the isolation of the spot has appealed to many persons owning automobiles.

Vermont Phoenix, Sept 26, 1924

Locust Ridge

There was a good attendance of persons interested in the Locust Ridge cemetery at the special meeting of the association Sept 18 at the schoolhouse in District No.1. The report of the improvement committee met with much approval and the committee was instructed to continue improvements by grading the south lots and graveling the road in the park on the north. The association also voted to buy the embankment bordering the cemetery on the north in order to preserve the shade trees.
